This is in accordance with views often declared by Mr. Johnson from the commencement of the rebellion and under the most impressive circumstances. Secondly, The choice of delegates was Mr. SPALDING withdrew his amendment and the amendment of Mr. Ross was rejected. The amendment offered by Mr. Provided was adopted. This leaves the law as it at present stands, with a tax of 5 per cent on incomes of $5000, and a tax of 10 per cent on any axcess of over $5000. The only difference being that the limit of the first $600 is extended to $1000. The vote on it $5000 is extended to $1000. Besides the steps taken by the Executive to restore the constitutional relations of the States, his annual message called the attention of Congress to the necessity of insuring the security of the Freedmen. Resuring the security of the Freedmen. Reminding Congress that while he had no doubt that the general Government could not extend the elective franchise, it was equally clear that good faith requires the security of the Freedmen in their liberty and their property; their right to labor and their right to claim the just return of their labor, and observing further that the country is in need of their labor and that the Freedmen are in need of employment, culture and protection. In connection with this subject the President further remarks: "Slavery was essentially a monopoly of "Slavery was essentially a monopoly of labor and as such locked the States where it prevailed against the incoming of free in-dustry. Where labor was the prop-erty of the capitalists the white man was accompled from amniovment, or had but the excitated from employment, or had but the second best chance of finding it, and the foreign emigrant turned away from the region where his condition would be pre-carious. These views of the President in relation to freedmen receive and continu relation to freedmen receive and constitute to receive my hearty concurrence. They have guided the action of the War Department, and were substantially advocated in its annual report. The President's annual message to the present Congress thus clearly states the condition of the country and the question thereby imposed upon him: "I found the States suffering from the effects of a civil war. The resistance to the Geheral Covernment appeared to have exhausted itself. The United States had recovered possession of their forts and arsenals, and their armics were in eccupation of every State which had attempted to seceed, and whether the territory within the limits of those States should be held as conquered territory under military power, the authority omanising from the President as the head of the army, was the first question that presented itself for discussion.

Mr. Stanton quoted at length from the trmy, was the irst question that presented the lead for discussion.
